Claim of James Lovelace, late of Albany

Halifax, 3rd July, 1786

~~Sworn~~ Claimt. Sworn

His father died in Saratoga in 1781. He was executed as a spy by the Americans. Claimt. was 19 yrs of age at that time & resided in Canada. In 1783 he lived at Fort St. Johns, Canada & says he could not send a claim at that time.

His late father, J<sup>nos</sup>. Lovelace was a native of America & when the war broke out he lived at Saratoga.

Says he never took any part with the Americans & joined the British Army on Lake Champlain in 1776. He remained with the Army until 1781, when he was sent with a party into the States. He fell into the hands of the Rebels & was executed.

He left a wife and seven children. His widow named Jonas is now married to And. Norton & resides in the Bay of Chaleur.

Clint. is the eldest son

Chenevix at Detroit.

Lucy married at Chockobots.

Thomas at Niagara

Elizab. at Bay Chaleur

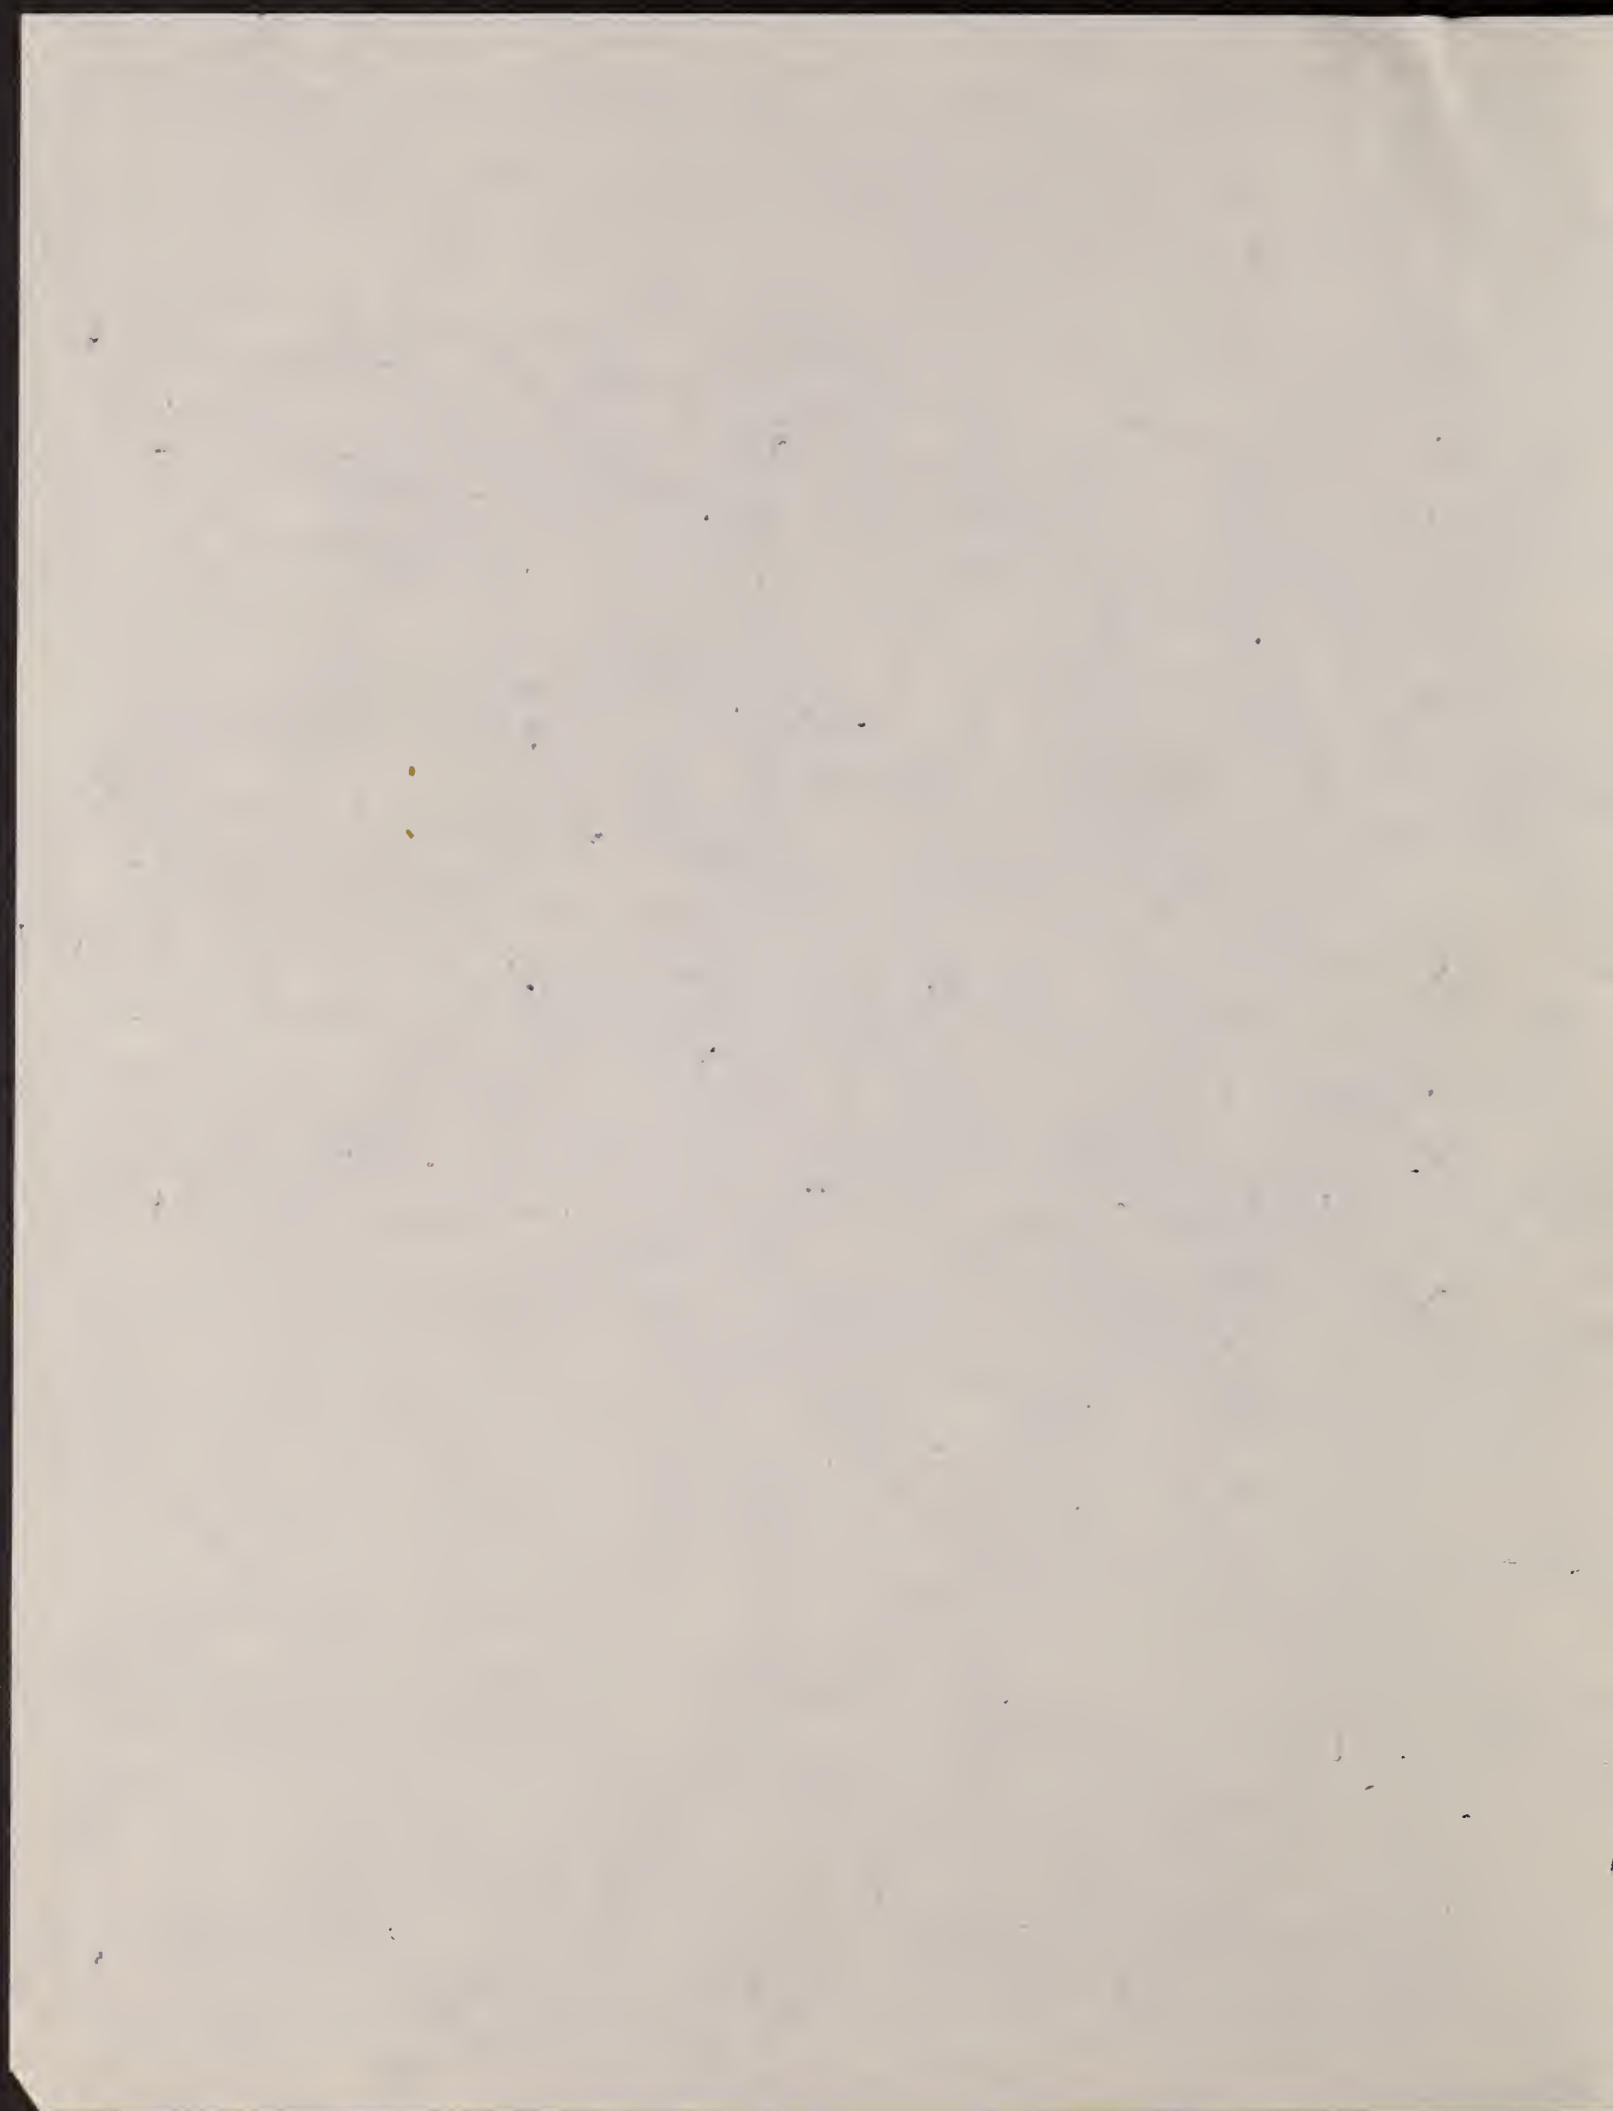

William at Chaleur.

It appears to be a personal communication, possibly dated in the late 19th or early 20th century. The handwriting is fluid and characteristic of the period.

sent to Albany on private intelligence, and seized by the Rebels, and executed in the year 1782

The clerk is about 20 years of age. He was always loyal, although too young to take any part.

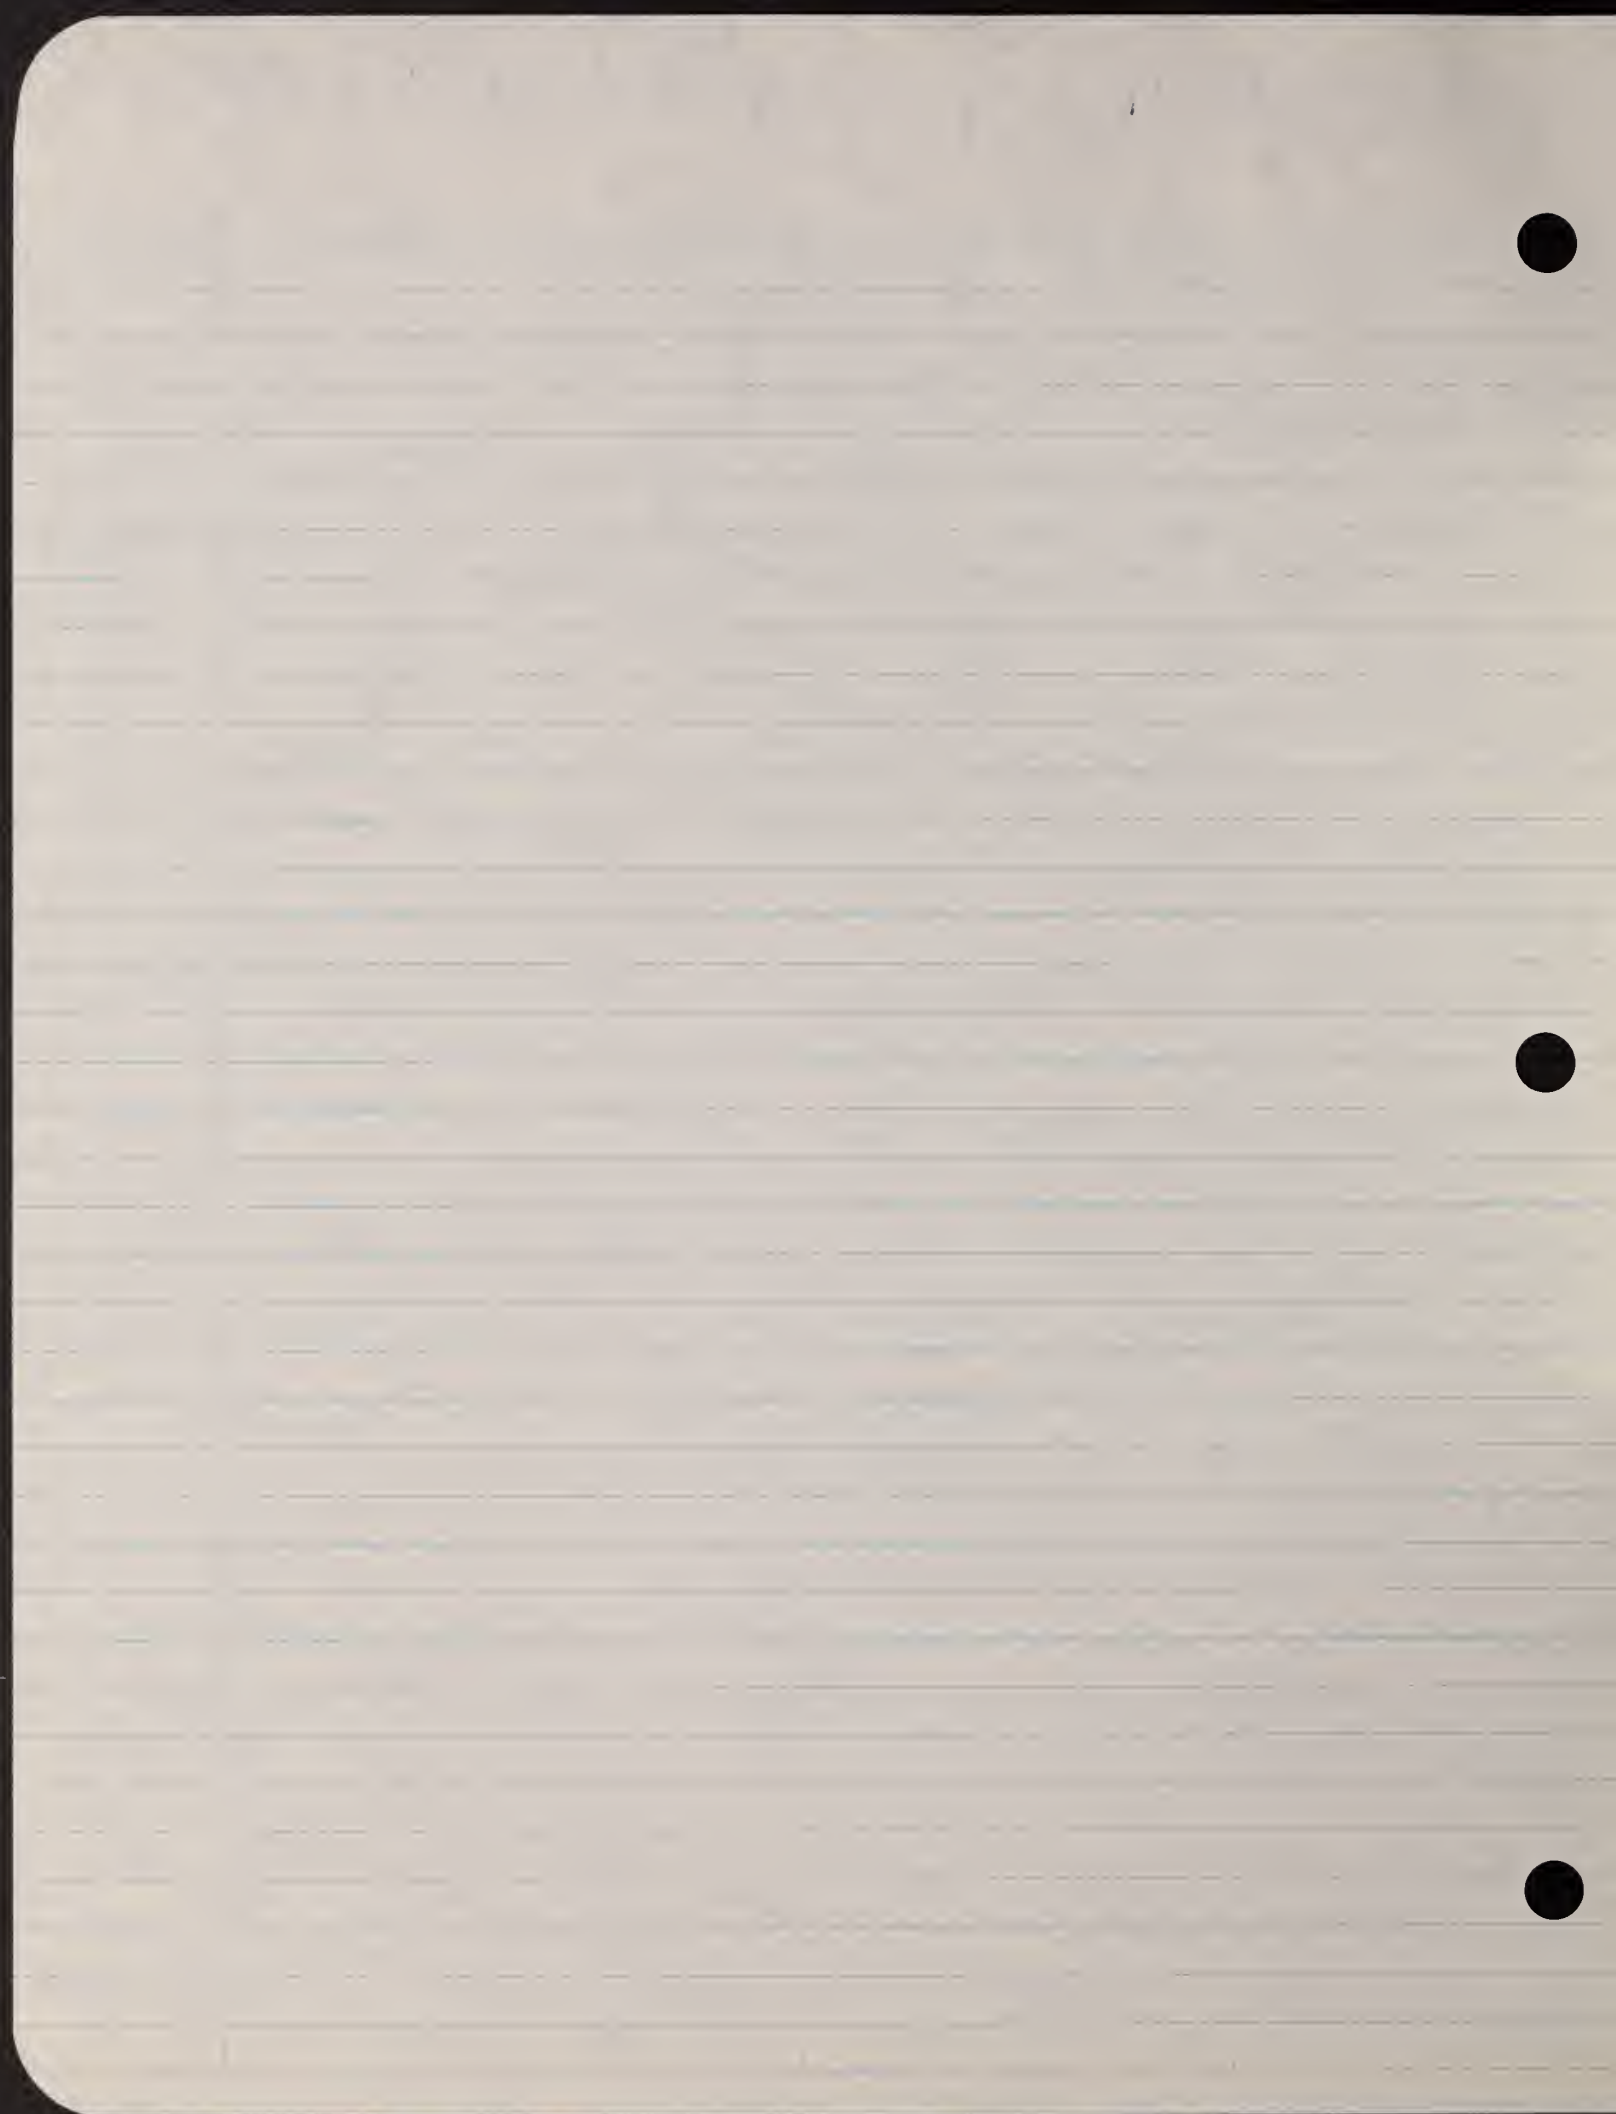

One hundred acres of land in Palmer Town, with a house and improvements, about 20 or 30 acres were cleared. Capt. Jones knew it well.

He thinks the land, house and improvements were worth £250 cur'y

He had some stock on his farm, which witness thinks he left behind.

My dear Mr. [Name]
I have just received your letter of the 10th inst. and am glad to hear that you are well. I am at present in the city and will be home in a few days.
I have not time to write you more fully at present
but will do so when I have more leisure.
Yours truly,

At the outbreak of the revolution, there was probably no where in this vicinity a stronger Tory nest than that existing across the west mountain, some ten miles distant from Queensbury settlement, under the favor and encouragement of the brothers, Ebenezer and Edward Jessup, sharp, enterprising and apparently unscrupulous business men, who had, from time to time, secured the grant of various patents of land not only within the limits of the present town of Luzerne, but also the extensive tracts known as Hyde township . . . . .

Scattered through this region lived a number of Tories, among whom may be enumerated the following, John Howell, who dwelt up the Sacandaga river, in the direction of Johnstown. Six brothers of the name of Lovelace, descendants of Governor Lovelace, who resided at different points on the opposite side of the river, and one of whom, who lived near the Stiles place in the town of Wilton (?) was in ~~the~~ one of the last years of the war, executed at Schuylerville, as a spy, by order of General Stark, after due trial by drum head court martial.

The Story of Old Saratoga.

by
John Henry Brandon, M.A.

Dunham's Daring Capture of Lovelass, the Spy.

It was during this or the previous season that the following incident occurred. Thomas Lovelass, a bold, resolute, and powerful man, was a noted leader among the Tories. He had succeeded in the capture of a number of his neighbors and in the destruction of much property among the patriots, and was considered a most dangerous partisan.

A goodly number of the people hereabouts were attending some entertainment or social function. While there, a boy was seen to emerge from the woods on horseback, and then riding up to the house asked if he could buy some rum there. On being answered No, he went on down the river road. Among those present who observed him were Colonel Van Veghten and Captain Hexter. Dunham. Dunham was a captain of militia, and a man of large influence among his neighbors. There was something in the behaviour of the boy which aroused their suspicions, and he decided to watch the outcome. In a little while the boy ~~returned~~ was seen to ride back up the road at full speed, re-enter the woods and vanish. Dunham turned to Colonel Van Veghten and said: "The enemy is near us, the Tories are in the neighborhood, and not far off." They separated with a determination to act immediately. Dunham when he reached home, went to see a person by the name of Green, who was a kindred spirit and a great leader among his neighbors. On relating the circumstance to him, they went and got three other men, and with these started out on the search. Every suspected place was carefully examined. They continued the search until near daylight without avail when they separated; Green and one man going in one direction, and Dunham, with two, taking another course. The latter, as a last resort, returned to the house of an Odeurman, who he believed would be in communication with an enemy, if near him. Near the house they discovered a path leading through a meadow toward a thicket about three acres in size. At once they suspected that this led to the object of their search. Following it they passed nearly around the Thicket, when it entered the bush. Toward the centre a big log blocked the way; on peeping over it cautiously there, sure enough, was the remains of a camp-fire and a group of five fierce-looking men. They were in the act of putting on their shoes and stockings, and one thing more which Dunham particularly observed was a musket by the side of every man, ready for instant service. He drew back, reported to his companions and in a whisper asked, "Shall we take 'em?" A nod of assent was the answer; then moving forward to the log, they all mounted at the same instant, and Dunham shouted, "Surrender, or you are all dead men!" All of them but their leader seemed petrified by the suddenness of the apparition. He was not disposed to yield without an effort at defense. Twice he was reaching for his gun when he found Dunham's rifle ominously near his head, at which he prudently desisted. They were then ordered out, one by one, when they were securely bound. Immediately they were marched off to the barracks at

Saratoga

They were tried and condemned at a court martial, of which the celebrated General Stark was the president. Lovells alone was adjudged worthy of death, as he was considered too dangerous a man to be allowed to escape. In defense, he protested that he had been taken with arms in his hand, and ought therefore to be considered a prisoner of war. But the court was inexorable. (Abridged from the Sextagenary's account)

He was hung on the top of the gravel hill, just south of the Houson mill, which then extended beyond the present highway to the east. The traditional spot is just east of the angle made by the picket and board fences and across the road from the brick house. John Strover was present and marked the spot. He told his son, George, about it; and when the bank was excavated for the Whitehall

P 374

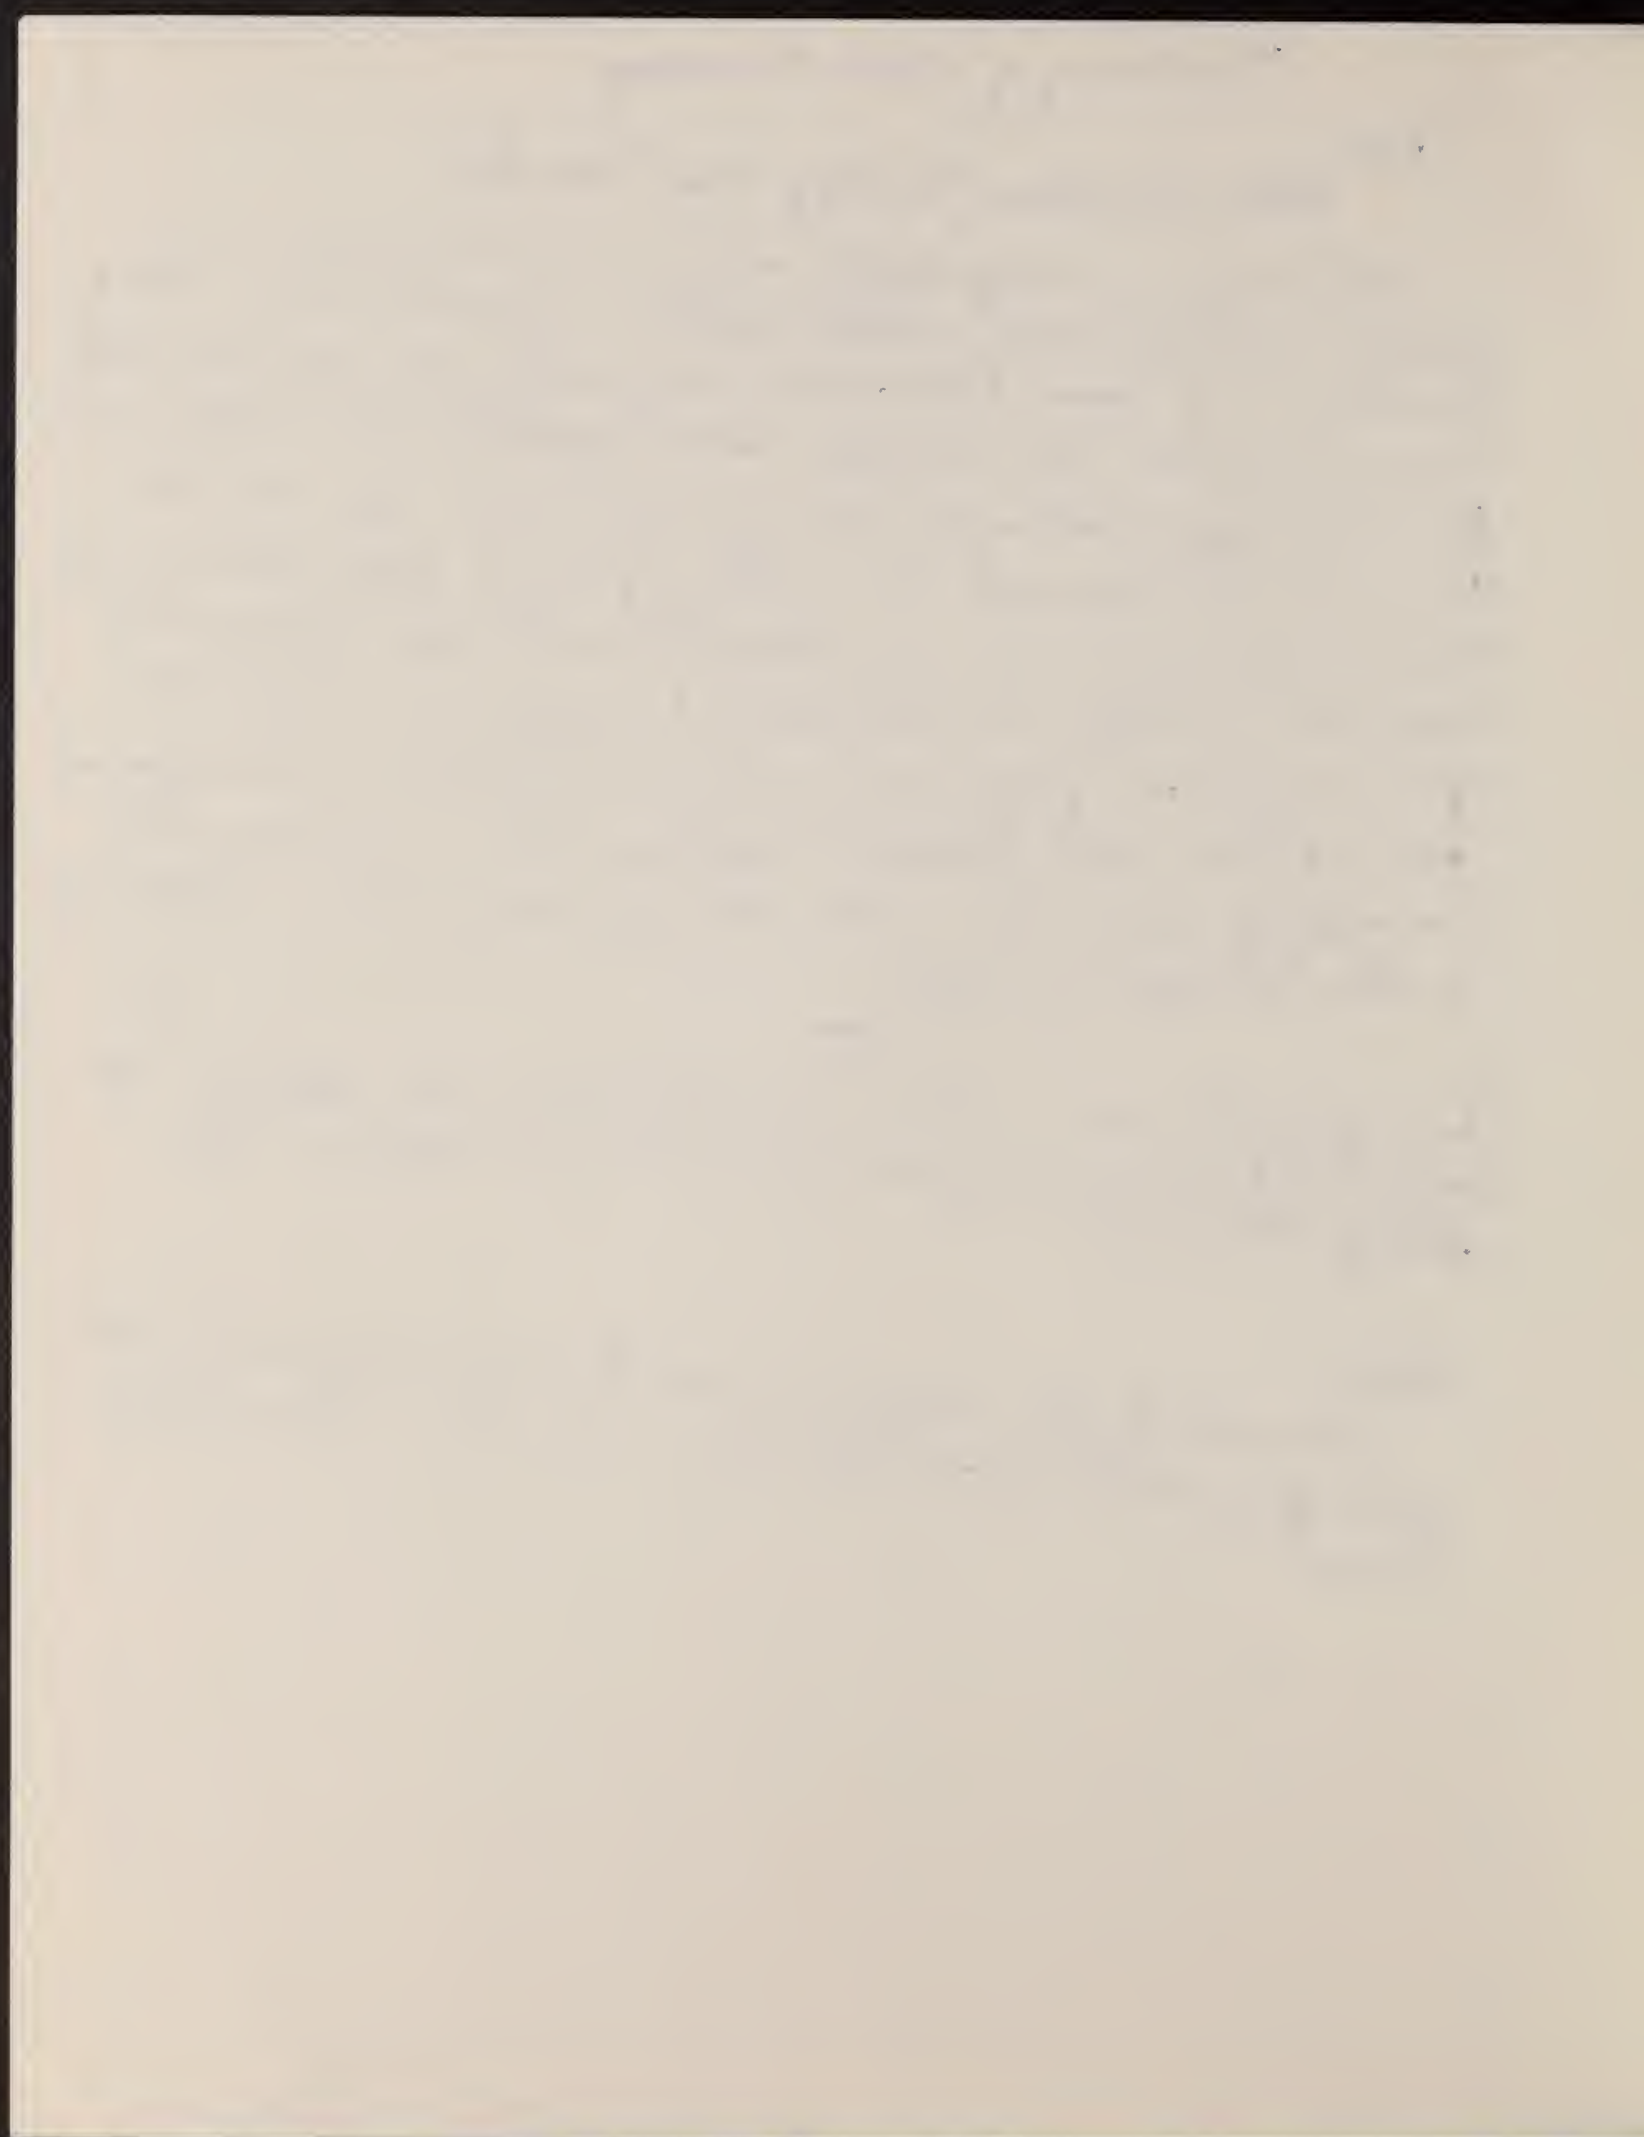

Where Loveless, the Spy, was Executed.

Retracing your steps to the road near the bridge, and looking south you see at a little distance a brick house. Back of this house is a gravel hill which originally extended to the east across the road. On the eastern brink of that hill, as it then was, the noted spy Loveless was hung, on the limb of an oak tree. He was buried beneath it in a sitting posture. John Strover saw him hung and buried, and told his son George all about it. When the Waterford and Whitehall Turnpike was built this gravel hill was partly dug away. George Strover was present and waited until Loveless' remains were unearthed, when he appropriated the skull. This gruesome relic is still kept in the Schuyler mansion.

Turnpike he was on hand and identified the skeleton. The skull of the Tory is preserved by Mrs. J. H. Fowler in the Schuyler Mansion.

Note

The site of the hanging is near the highway just south of the present Schuyler mansion & close to a small brick house.
